

COVID-19 AND UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

Who is eligible?

You may be eligible for unemployment compensation if you are an employee and:

1. Are unable to work because your doctor, health agency, or employer requests that you isolate or quarantine due to COVID-19; or
2. Your employer lays you off due to the loss of production caused by COVID-19.

You do NOT need to be diagnosed with COVID-19.

You do NOT have to be totally unemployed. If your hours of work are reduced, you may still be eligible for some unemployment compensation.

Do I need documentation?

Documentation is NOT required, but may be helpful. If you do not have documentation, you should not wait to file-- file immediately. If possible, you should ask your doctor, health agency, or employer for something in writing that you have been requested to isolate due to COVID-19 concerns OR that your hours of work have been reduced due to COVID-19.

What if I am a tipped employee?

If you are a tipped employee and the employer did not include tips in the wages, you will need to file an affidavit with your tipped wages for ODJFS to review and determine the benefit amount due. If the employer includes tips in your wages, there is nothing for you to do.

What if I want to isolate myself but nobody has asked me to do so?

If you do not have any COVID-19 symptoms but want to isolate or quarantine because of COVID-19, you may NOT be eligible for unemployment compensation.
